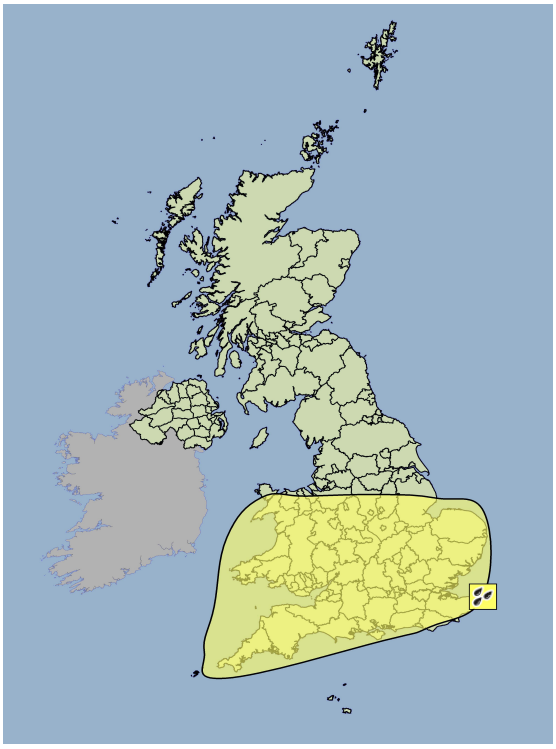
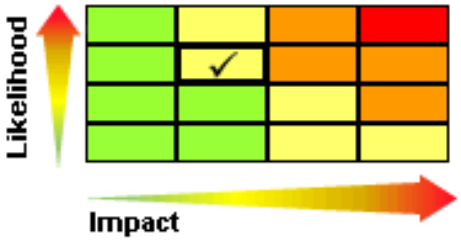
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A slack area of low pressure remains across southern Britain. Heavy showers and thunderstorms may produce 10 to 20 mm in an hour or less, and perhaps 30 mm in 2 or 3 hours. As is the nature of showers, some places will escape the heavier downpours.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 05:45 on Fri, 27th Jun 2014 until 21:00 on Fri, 27th Jun 2014

Heavy, thundery showers will continue in some parts of the warning area during Friday evening, accompanied by hail and lightning in places, but gradually easing towards sunset. The public should be aware that the downpours may lead to localised surface water flooding and potential disruption to transport and outdoor events.

This is an update of the warning first issued on Thursday, splitting the original warning to cover this evening and Saturday separately to help differentiate the areas most at risk.
